Canadians Nose Out Maple Leafs in 4 to 3 Victory at Lethbridge New Year's Day

Having Won First Half League Schedule, Looking Forward to Senior Playoffs.

The hockey summary this week shows Canadians taking part in two exhibition games and one league game, winning all three by narrow margins, although they have only themselves to blame for the low score chalked up against Bellevue.

On Wednesday, Dec. 30, the Alaska Polar Bears, touring senior team from Fairbanks, Alaska, were seen in action. The Bears were a smart skating team but lacked polish around the net. Their first string line of Passe, Vickers and Kaviuk was good, especially Vickers, whom the team picked up at Vancouver, he having originally come there from Nelson.

Vickers scored twice, one from mid-ice and the second from the blue-line, to take the honors for his team, the other goal came from the stick of Hoehner who opened the scoring for the Bears. J. Fraser, Fisher with two, and Brown scored Coleman's goals.

Coleman At Lethbridge

Leading 3-1 with eight minutes to go, Lethbridge were all set to stage the biggest celebration of the year as they led Coleman home to the finish line on Saturday evening. But as in previous games they were doomed to disappointment as Canadians made an assault on the Lethbridge goal that netted them three markers, two within twenty seconds, to skate off the ice with broad grins as they enjoyed the chagrin of the large Lethbridge crowd, who had really expected a win for their favorites.

Although winning games Coleman are being hard pressed by the opposition when one glances at the score board. Coach Evans probably thinks the same thing, as he locked the doors against the public and put his team through a secret practice at the arena on Sunday. It was reported he was re-arranging his forward lines and practicing new plays.

On Monday evening against

Bellevue the forward lines were re-arranged, Joyce playing defence with Landiak on the front string with W. Fraser and Jenkins. Fisher centered Brown and Lopichuk. With this line-up the score board at the end of the first period read 0-0. Their team work inside the Bellevue zone was very poor.

Evans switched his players back to their old positions in the second period and gained results in three minutes as Brown scored, going on to win 4-1 at the final bell.

Judging from their play during the last few games, Canadians play a good combination game until they hit the opposing blue-line and then lose all semblance of good hockey, blind passing becoming a big feature in their game. But then again the opposition might have been too weak to give of their best. Anyway they will need many more practices if they wish to improve sufficiently to win provincial senior honors next March.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Among those returning to Calgary last week after spending the holidays at their homes here were the Misses Pearl McDonald, Virginia Janostak, Olga Belovich, Liddle Tiberghien and Joe D'Appolonia and Luke Lindoe.

Mrs. Borden, who since returning from overseas in December has been visiting relatives in Boston, left there for Hamiota, Man., arriving on Tuesday morning, owing to the critical illness of her sister, who underwent a trying operation for appendicitis. It may be some days before Mrs. Borden arrives in Coleman.

Balloch's Rink Won New Year Bonspiel

Next Important Event is Pontiac and Studebaker Bonspiel January 13-14.

The old battle cry, "sweep that rock, hard!" resounded throughout the curling arena over the holidays as the local club staged its annual New Year's Day bonspiel. Nine teams played keenly and enthusiastically as they sought the Morrison cup and accompanying prize which went to the winners, many games being decided only when the last rock had been thrown.

The final saw the survival of the fittest when Hoggan met Balloch, the latter winning out 10 to 5 in twelve ends. Personnel of the winning team was H. Cady, J. Anderson, J. Nash and A. Balloch, skip. Personnel of Hoggan rink was S. Houghton, R. McLeod, H. Harris and Wm. Hoggan, skip. Five teams will battle it out among themselves for the consolation prize, probably next Sunday.

The bonspiel for the Pontiac and Studebaker trophies will be staged at the arena next Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 13 and 14. Rinks from Fincher Creek, Bellevue, Blairmore and Coleman will compete. Holding the bonspiel at this time will enable rinks entering the Crow's Nest Pass bonspiel at Fernie on Feb. 1 to take the rough edges from their game.

Three rinks have been formed to go to Fernie, their skips being Moores, Boulton and Cousins.

TOWN COUNCIL NOTES

At a recent meeting notice of motion of a by-law was given to appoint a returning officer for the civic election to be held the first Monday in February, in accordance with the statute governing same.

The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted; accounts were passed for payment.

A tenant of a house in West Coleman, owned by the town, was ordered to be given 30 days notice if his rent was not paid.

An increase in the rate to be paid by the town to the Workmen's Compensation Act to cover town employees will go into effect in 1937, the council was advised.

An outhouse on a property had been complained of as a nuisance, and the police was ordered to have it eliminated as quickly as possible.

Nominations for the council and school board will be held the last Monday in January, with ratepayers' annual meetings on the last Friday in January.

THANKS FOR VOTES

Nellie DeCocco thanks all who voted for her in the contest for the Bulova watch given by Chalmers' jewelry store, and takes this means of expressing her appreciation.

Eric Bergquist, known among his friends as "The Count," entertained a few at his home one evening last week, and as a souvenir of the occasion the names of the company were autographed on the expensive white shirt front of the chief guest of honor.

A HOWLIN' SUCCESS—NEW YEAR'S EVE

What mattered it if the temperature in the Crow's Nest Pass was 26 below zero on New Year's Eve? It couldn't dampen the jubilant spirits of the cosmopolitan throng which joined in the annual dance of Coleman branch of St. John Ambulance Association in the Community hall, where dancing resembled a pot of porridge so darned thick that it just moves in a mass when you try to stir it. They were so intent on enjoying themselves that midnight passed without singing Auld Lang Syne, or if they did, there was so much noise nobody heard it. It was a rip-roarin' success and "a good time was had by all." There wasn't even room to sit down and the pace was a little too fast for some of the more staid folk not acquainted with the intricacies of the "Tango" or the "Rhumba." Coleman at 6 a.m. came on New Year's Day was more lively than it was at 6 in the evening, when quite a number must have been sleeping to get their second wind, judging by the almost deserted appearance of Main street.

Variegated decorations made the Community hall particularly attractive for the St. John Ambulance dance, several of the members spending considerable time the night before putting up streamers and the greeting over the stage bidding all and sundry "A Happy New Year." Bill Balloch, the caretaker, surveying the wreck of the Hesperus next morning, figured it had indeed been very happy, judging by the assortment of "dead soldiers," forgotten hats and other signs of revelry by night.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster went to Fincher Creek on New Year's Eve to attend the Firemen's Annual Ball, and to renew acquaintances with old friends there. The Frnac hall was beautifully decorated and as this event has been held for a number of years, many of the old-timers graced

Salvation Army's Christmas Concert

Pleased Young and Old With Program of Pageants, Short Plays and Vocal and Instrumental Numbers

With Mayor Pattinson occupying the chair, all available floor space was needed to accommodate the large crowd which attended the most colorful and picturesque entertainment ever staged for Coleman citizens; all items on the program being original and outstanding. The Star of the East with its colorful setting, the mountains and wooded valleys in the background, and the colorful Indians around their glowing camp-fire, was a stirring scene. The children in Alexander's Rag Time band were in military uniform, and once seen, could not be forgotten. The Star Drill also presented a novel and glittering scene.

"Grandpa's Not the Man He Used to Be," written and directed by Albert Knowles and starring Pearl Knowles and Alfie Ledieu, supplied the audience with much laughter.

As a fitting climax for the Christmas entertainment, Santa himself arrived dressed in the most colorful garb he has worn during the last one hundred years.

He delighted his audience by asking the children to join in singing different choruses. Santa too was requested to sing or play and in collaboration with Lieutenant Fitch, they rendered a stirring melody, "Whispering Hope."

After giving all those present some Christmas treat, he left to visit other children.

the occasion with their attendance. They returned home just in time to beat the rising of the sun.

Summit Relief Camp Re-Opened Christmas Eve

Over 100 Men Will Work on Highway Between Lake and Crow's Nest Station

With 114 men, and a staff of four, including the cook, John Blair, camp foreman who has filled a similar position in former years in Pass camps, opened up the Summit camp at Crow's Nest Lake on Christmas eve.

During the severe weather, only emergency work will be undertaken, but as it improves, more permanent work on straightening the highway between the lake and the B. C. boundary will be undertaken.

As the men have no means of transportation to and from town, it would be appreciated if those having magazines or other reading matter would leave it at The Journal office, whence it will be despatched to the camp. Foreman Blair stated this would be greatly appreciated, as the men will not have any money to purchase anything till the next payday.

At Bellevue camp there were about a dozen men on Monday, and 100 more were expected from Calgary the following day, to work on the highway in that vicinity, and possibly between the highway and Hillcrest.

Compensation Rates Up

The Workmen's Compensation Board has increased assessment rates in 1937 to $6.00 per $100 wages. It was $4.75. Medical aid rates are increased from 7c to 10c per work day. Depletion of the income of the Board's funds by the Aberhart government cutting interest in half has made necessary the increase, which is causing strong protest from operators and workers.

Ottawa Is Making Preparations For The Opening Of Parliament

Ottawa.—Full speed ahead will be the order in government circles from now until Jan. 14th, when the governor-general, Lord Tweedsmuir, will formally open the second session of Canada's 18th parliament since confederation.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King will begin a series of cabinet councils which will be continued with frequent sessions for the next fortnight after which the demands of parliament will leave time only for the brief noon meetings and one long meeting Saturday.

A number of ministers took advantage of the holiday season for trips to the south or to their former homes in the Dominion but the majority remained in Ottawa and all are expected to be on hand when the prime minister meets his colleagues in the privy council.

A short but important legislative program is expected and the government will be working at full capacity applying the finishing touches to it. Estimates will be presented early, giving members an opportunity of studying proposals for disbursements of public moneys during the next fiscal year, and unless this item is left for later supplementary estimates, disclosing the much-discussed intentions of the government regarding national defence expenditures.

Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of finance, will probably present his budget early since it is hoped and intended to end the session by the end of April so ministers and members may be free to attend the coronation in May and the imperial conference which follows immediately after.

Some betterment of the financial picture painted by Mr. Dunning in his last budget speech is expected but the ministers hope ultimately to present a balanced budget will have to be deferred. He had estimated a deficit of around $100,000,000 but increased revenues and general economic improvement may enable him to do better.

Much interest attaches to the attitude to be adopted by the prime minister R. B. Bennett, leader of the official opposition, on such matters as defence and the government's handling of the constitutional issues arising from the abdication of King Edward and the discussions leading up to that unprecedented act.

Mr. Bennett arrived in London and will be back at his place in parliament when the debate on the speech from the throne opens about a fortnight from now. He has just achieved his long-delayed ambition of touring the empire and when he returns to Ottawa will have travelled around the world, visiting the Antipodes, South Africa and the British Isles.

Document Is Lost

Hon. Dr. Camsell

Cincinnati.—Dr. Charles Camsell, Ottawa, deputy minister of mines, was elected a vice-president of the Geological Society of America as Professor Charles Palache of Harvard University was chosen its president.

As in the past, revisions would be made after each quarterly review of employment conditions throughout the Dominion, he said, with the grants being adjusted according to the varying degrees of business improvement in the several provinces. This is the third time the grants have continued unchanged. A 75 per cent. increase was granted for the winter months. In April this was reduced

King Issues Message

New Year's Greeting His Majesty Pledges To Serve Empire
London.—King George VI. issued a New Year's greeting to the Empire, reading:

"In this first New Year's Day of my reign I send all the people of the Empire my warmest wishes for their welfare and happiness.

"In succeeding to the throne I follow a father who had won for himself an abiding place in the hearts of his people and a brother whose brilliant qualities gave promise of another historic reign. His reign was cut short in circumstances upon which, from their very sadness, none of us would wish to dwell.

"I realize the full responsibilities of my noble heritage. I shoulder them with all the more confidence in the knowledge that the queen and my mother, Queen Mary, are at my side.

"Throughout my life it will be my constant endeavor to strengthen the foundation of mutual trust and affection of which relations between the sovereign and people of the British Empire so happily rest. I ask your help toward fulfillment of this purpose, and I know that I do not ask in vain.

"To repeat the words used by my dear father at the time of his silver jubilee, my wife and I dedicate ourselves for all time to your service and we pray God may give us guidance and strength to follow the path that lies before us."

Many Attend Services

To Pay Their Final Tribute To Noted Journalist
New York.—Prominent persons from all walks of life paid final tribute to Arthur Brisbane, noted journalist and editor, during funeral services held at St. Bartholomew's church, on Park avenue. More than 2,000 persons filled the fashionable structure, while more than 2,000 stood outside on Park avenue. Burial was made at the foot of the tower where he studied and wrote many of the articles which made him America's highest-paid journalist.

Strictest privacy surrounded the internment. Even flower bearers were barred from the 5,000-acre site which he created at Aiala, N.J., nine miles southwest of Asbury Park.

Four Eligible For Pensions

Centenarian In Quebec Has Three Sons Over Seventy
Quebec.—Among centenarian applicants for old age pensions in the province of Quebec is Joseph Godbout, 102, of St. Georges de Windsor. Subsequent to his application received at the old age pensions commission bureau here he has three sons over 70 years of age who also are eligible for the pensions. Oldest applicant is Madame Vittel Chapdelaine of Three Rivers, aged 103.

Returns To Canada

Ottawa.—Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the governor-general, has returned to Canada after a two-month visit to the United Kingdom. With Lady Tweedsmuir are her second son, Hon. William Buchanan, and her niece, Miss C. Peyton-Jones.

Mr. Rogers pointed out the Dominion government did not interfere directly with the financial arrangements made by the provincial governments with the municipalities.

"It is important, however, to make it clear at this time that the grants to the provinces will only be continued on their present basis for the months of January, February and March," he emphasized.

"With the clear indication of an expanding business recovery during the coming year, there is reason to anticipate the federal government, provincial governments and municipalities will be able to reduce relief expenditures."

15 per cent., with another 10 per cent. reduction on July 1. Since then there has been no change, the Dominion's payments to the provinces totalling $2,345,653 monthly.

Will Try Submarine Trip

Sir Hubert Wilkins May Travel Under Arctic Ice
Halifax.—Sir Hubert Wilkins, famous Australian explorer, passed through Halifax on his way to England where he hopes to have a submarine built that will take him on an underwater voyage through the Arctic ocean.

The ship in which Sir Hubert plans to follow the mythical "northwest passage" to the Pacific ocean where Frobiisher and other heroes of old failed in their pompous Elizabethan galleons is his own invention.

In a 175-foot submarine with an exceptionally heavy steel hull Sir Hubert plans to make about 50 or 60 miles a day underneath Arctic ice. He said the submarine would be like a decked-in houseboat fitted with every comfort.

"It will be the easiest expedition I have ever attempted," he said confidently smiling at the convictions of friends that the proposed trip was "suicidal."

He estimated the value of the ship would be about $250,000.

Abelish Penal Colony

France May Send No More Convicts To Devil's Island
Paris.—No more convicts will be sent to historic "Devil's Island" under terms of a bill to be submitted to parliament to reform the French penal system.

Existence of the penal colony off the coast of French Guiana is a constant threat to French prestige in the United States and Latin America, said Minister of Justice Rucart in a communique on the forthcoming bill, to be sponsored by the government. Under it the penal colony would be gradually abandoned.

Conditions under which the convicts live are unduly severe, the note declared, and the existence of penal colonies in French territorial possessions is harmful to the development of these regions.

The government bill is designed to encourage correctional treatment, to substitute solitary confinement as the extreme punishment for unruly convicts instead of forced labor.

New Rail Equipment

Orders For Value Of $23,000,000 Expected To Be Placed Shortly
Montreal.—Rail equipment orders amounting to about $23,000,000 are expected to be announced shortly, with the Canadian National Railways arranging for about $18,000,000 worth of new stock and the Canadian Pacific $5,000,000.

Current reports have placed the amount of new equipment to be acquired by the railways within the next half year at about $40,000,000 but so far as could be learned the $23,000,000 orders are all that have been provided for at present. It is considered possible that the Canadian Pacific will be enlarging upon the figure mentioned for that company but there have been no official announcements.

Seeking New Record

London.—Captain James Mollison and Flight-Lieut. David Llewellyn will make separate attempts to set a new air speed record for the London-Cape Town-London route this month, it has been announced. The record is held by Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison, wife of Capt. Mollison.

REV. GERALD R. CRAGG

Late of New Liskeard, Ont., who becomes editor of The New Outlook.

Preparing For Session

No Resolutions Placed On Order Paper By Private Members
Ottawa.—Contrary to custom during the pre-session period, private members of the House of Commons have not forwarded a single resolution to be placed on the order paper.

Usually long before the house opens there are numerous resolutions filed with house officials so they may have precedence for debate on private members' days.

Since it is hoped the forthcoming session may end by May 1 so that there will be no embarrassment to the many who will want to attend the coronation ceremony, the absence of private member resolutions may be an indication of a desire to co-operate in making the session brief.

These advance resolutions are usually sponsored by opposition members who have definite ideas of measures that may be taken to reform the economic system and improve conditions in general for the average citizen. The fact none have been received, however, does not necessarily mean that private members have decided not to encumber the order paper. It is possible they have decided to hold back their contributions to debate until parliament opens.

Only One Survivor

Three Companions Of British Aviator Killed In Spain
London.—John Wilson, Oxford graduate and son of a Liverpool manufacturer, arrived back in England, the only survivor of a party of four young Britons who went to Spain to fly for the government cause.

Wilson's three companions were killed in aerial combat. Wilson himself barely escaped alive. He took off from Alicante in his own plane, intending to head for the French frontier and fly home via Paris. That was on Christmas eve. His plane was shot down. He survived the crash unhurt but was made prisoner by the insurgents. Later he succeeded in escaping to the border, flying from Greta to Crocydon.

Poultry Fancier Dead

Dr. John E. Wilkenson Of Edmonton Developed New Variety Of Chickens
Edmonton.—Internationally renowned as a poultry fancier, Dr. John E. Wilkenson, 65, died suddenly at his home here, Born in Brampton, Ont., he graduated in dentistry from the University of Toronto. He practiced in Edmonton for 23 years.

Dr. Wilkenson developed a new variety of chicken called "Chandler variety," and was listed in the American Poultry Association's official American Standard of Perfection as originator of the new type.

Recently the German government sent the Edmonton dentist a plaque in recognition of his exhibit of Chandler variety chickens at the famed Leipzig poultry show last July.

During the past year he had succeeded in developing another new species, the "Imperial," bred especially for Alberta conditions.

His entries won scores of prizes at poultry shows ranging in importance from Edmonton exhibitions to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto and the World's Poultry congress in London.

Jobless Put To Work

700 Men Employed On Road Work In British Columbia
Vancouver.—Trails were being pushed through British Columbia forests by more than 700 men, some of whom a few weeks ago were clashing with police on Vancouver's streets or starting noisy demonstrations in the city jail.

They are the first parties of an estimated 4,000 unemployed single men to be put to work under Dominion-provincial agreement. Each man will spend two months at this work, being replaced then by others at present on direct relief.

They are paid 30 cents an hour for an eight-hour day and are being charged 75 cents a day for board. Part of their wages is given to them weekly, the balance being held for payment in weekly amounts after they leave camp. The plan expires in April. To be eligible they must have been in British Columbia prior to Nov. 15 last.

Asking Higher Grants

Manitoba Government Receives Request From Rural Teachers
Winnipeg.—Increased grants to education totalling $1,250,000 were asked of Hon. Ivan Schultz, Manitoba minister of education, by a committee representing rural school teachers in the province. The request was taken under consideration.

The committee contended many teachers were so poorly paid they could not afford to clothe themselves adequately. It was claimed some salaries were as low as $175 a year, while three-fourths of the teachers in the province received less than $300 annually and the average annual salary was $483.

The committee recommended no Manitoba teacher receive less than $650 as an initial salary.

Drop Use Of Uniforms

London.—Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British fascist blackshirts, said the organization would drop use of uniforms in conformance with the recent act of parliament.

Immediately after expiration of the Washington and London 1930 naval pacts removed all restrictions on capital ship construction, Britain began work on the two new super-dreadnaughts, to be named the Prince of Wales and King George.

Authoritative sources said the government does not plan any further attempts to prevent a race in fortifications on the Pacific ocean possessions of the leading powers.

Britain recently proposed article 1 of the Washington treaty, providing for maintenance of the 1922 status of Pacific fortifications, be continued in force, but Japan has not given consent.

The keel of the King George V, was laid at Vickers-Armstrong yard at Walker-on-Tyne and the keel of the Prince of Wales at the Harland and Wolff shipyard at Birkenhead.

The year 1937 opened with no international treaty in force to check naval armaments races. The Washington treaty of 1922 and the London naval treaty of 1930 both expired with the last day of 1936.

Under these treaties Britain, France, the United States, Japan and Italy limited the tonnage of their navies. The new London treaty concluded early in 1936 limits sizes of ships and guns but it does not limit the number of ships. And the 1936 treaty, signed only by the United States and France with the nations of the British Commonwealth, has so far only been ratified by the United States.

The expiring treaty contained no provisions for banning the assembling of parts and materials for new units. Engineers had been planning Britain's new battleships for several years. They are expected, Havana reported, to be the fastest and most powerful naval units afloat when they take to the water in about three years.

The new battleships will be the first to be built by Britain with aircraft as part of the original equipment.

Commenting on the 1936 London treaty the Times expressed a hope for early ratification of the accord by Paris and London.

"It was the task of the London naval conference of last winter to achieve continuance of the benefits while avoiding the defects of earlier treaties," the Times said. "It is to be hoped, and there are fair grounds for believing, it will eventually prove to have succeeded in that task."

The paper said prospects of having other powers subscribe to the three-power pact "would seem to be not unfavorable."

Plea For Resumption Of Immigration Made By Sir Edward Beatty

Montreal.—Plea for resumption of immigration to Canada is made by Sir Edward Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in his annual review of Canadian economic conditions.

"There could be no more grave illusion than to believe that unemployment results from overpopulation and can be cured by reducing the number of our people," Sir Edward says.

"All immigration of the future will be . . . the controlled admission to the country of individuals and groups equipped to become shortly producers of added wealth."

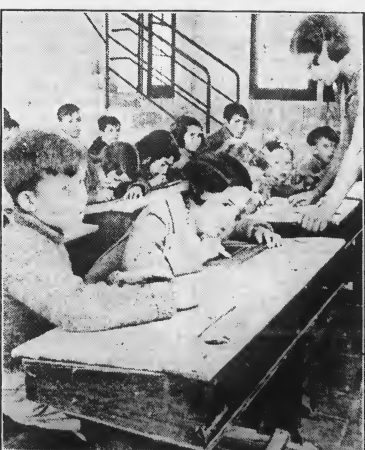

Increase of population is suggested by Sir Edward as one way to assist in Canada's problem of depleted railway revenues. Although gross revenues have increased about seven per cent. in the first 11 months of 1936, according to Sir Edward's figures, increase in gross operating expenses have almost entirely offset this gain.

"It will be at once recognized that the increase in business has produced practically no additional profit for the owners of the railway, and is far from providing anything in the way of surplus funds available for capital expenditures."

"Such figures as these are serious and disturbing to those of us who . . . operate railways. They can be no less alarming to those who own the railways, and since every taxpayer citizen in Canada is in the latter class, it should follow that Canadians are eagerly looking to see what we are doing about it."

"The experience of this company last summer when we were exhibiting our new light fast trains, convinces me that the people are keenly interested in what we are trying to do to meet changing conditions."

Looking more contented than they probably feel, these Spanish refugee children are shown in one of the classrooms in the Stadium at Barcelona, being cared for by the Friends Service Council. Many of these children have lost their fathers and some are homeless.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

SMALL TOWNS frequently make good pickings for "rackets" of various kinds, especially in advertising and booster campaigns. A glib, quick talking purveyor of a money-raising stunt of which he will be the only beneficiary will persuade merchants that they will get some valuable publicity if they will contribute anything from five to a hundred dollars. A prominent business man telephoned The Journal for information concerning one such stunt, stating he regarded it as a pure racket with no advertising value for himself. Not so long ago storekeepers were relieved of tidy little sums to pay for an electric sign on which appeared a hodge-podge of advertisements of a non-descript type surrounding an electric clock. The clock, when it was working, was seldom correct; often the lights were off, and when they were on the effect on the eye was much like a crazy patchwork quilt, made at Aunt Dinah's party, though the latter probably was more useful.

THE FIRST glance at these propositions usually appeals to a customer's vanity. He imagines his name will stand out above all others, and that fame and fortune will follow. When the finished product is presented to the public gaze, his individuality is absorbed into a mass of other individualities, consequently all individuality is lost. Our business is to sell advertising space in the most valuable local advertising medium, our own paper; which recounts the doings of Coleman people in far more detail than any other medium, consequently it holds the interest of its ever widening circle of readers. This paper is owned and produced by men who pay their share of local taxes, who share their payroll with local stores, who are a part of the community and take an active part in its varied activities.

A PRIME requisite to success in any field of endeavor, is imagination, or vision. Your dreams may not come true, but to arrive anywhere a goal must be aimed at. For instance, our object in recording the news, and the views, is to say as few words as possible, yet give the maximum of news value or meaning in those few words, a striking example of which was set by the late Arthur Brisbane, reported to be the highest paid journalist in the world. His daily column, "To-Day," written in a style so that the man on the street could easily grasp its full meaning, whether it exerted immense influence or not, was certainly the most widely read of any daily column.

THERE IS an object lesson in Brisbane's style. It is: Don't waste words; don't waste others' time in trying to get your thoughts across; get the facts correct before talking or writing; then write your thoughts in as few words as possible, no matter how much of your own time you spend in eliminating time waste and laborious thought of others. That is essential to popular writing of news or fiction, and the basis on which a daily newspaper in old London outstripped in circulation others which were supreme. Above all, imagination is vital; not exaggeration. Imagination envisions the possibilities of what today may appear barren and void. It built a railroad across Canada in the face of what appeared to be the majority insuperable obstacles. It developed our valuable coal and oil resources, creating industrial payrolls in Alberta. Imagination is a tonic, providing you do something useful with it.

PREMIER ABERHART in facetious mood on Sunday, said he half expected a New Year's greeting from the press, after he had supplied them with so much news during 1936. The press bears him no grudge personally, but that does not apply to his policies, and the olive branch has been extended to him on previous occasions, without effect. Possibly he feels it is better to be on friendly relations with the press than calling them names. Down in Washington, D.C., the newspapermen invited the president, his defeated opponents, Governor Landon, and Browder and Thomas, defeated Socialist and Communist candidates, to their annual banquet, and they all enjoyed themselves.

THE HEARST newspaper in Seattle came in for a scorching editorial from the Vancouver Sun over its reference to the abdication of Edward VIII., and derogatory remarks against the Royal family and Prime Minister Baldwin. Seldom does one see a good word for Great Britain in any Hearst publication. Pandering to sensationalism is the main appeal of the Hearst press for popularity. Similar methods are followed by cheap politicians in Alberta.

When a crowd get together for an enjoyable evening, usually there are some irresponsibles whom good sense forsakes. At the St. John Ambulance Association dance, some foolish persons let off firecrackers in the crowded hall without any regard to the damage that might be caused to ladies' dresses or the fire hazard. The result was that the atmosphere became poisonous with gunpowder fumes, and to say the least it was going a great deal too far and in utter disregard of the comfort of the people. The air became so bad that some were compelled to leave.

LOOKING US OVER

Richard J. Needham, recently appointed provincial news editor of the Calgary Herald, spent what might be termed a "busman's holiday" at New Year's. Being young and energetic, and from almost holy Toronto, he took advantage of the brief respite from daily newspaper work to make a hurried trip to Blairmore, Coleman and Fernie, to get the lay of things. He called on Harry Clark, sr., who happens to be from the same home burg, or near it, of Windsor, made famous as the home of Queen Victoria, and "ye ed" of the Journal piloted him to the points of interest, had a drink with Harry, and otherwise spent a pleasant day.

52 years of married life is something out of the ordinary, and at New Year's Mr. and Mrs. A. W. H. McLeod were greeted by a number of friends in addition to members of the family in honor of the occasion. Their son Fraser is master mechanic at International mine, and Herdman is general manager at Mercoal.

THE WEST WIND DID BLOW

The driving wind from the west on Sunday created discomfort to those who had to be around, or lived in draughty houses. The temperature was 20 above zero, but it felt like 40 below. Blairmore reported 37 below some time during the holidays, but then the thermometer there it is feared must register two degrees for every one below zero. White River, Ont., is usually the coldest spot in Canada, but Blairmore newspaper correspondent is trying to steal their thunder. Of course, you can believe it or not. Even thermometers, like people, vary.

Annoyances of a "peeping Tom" not yet revealed have been reported to The Journal, who might get a jolt by a shot in the eye some fine evening when on his nocturnal habits. So Beware! Beware!

BIG EVENT COMING

It is reported that the chosen of God's elect who hail from the Kingdom of Fife are enthusiastically planning for the Burns' anniversary this month. Just whether a sprinkling of Sasamechs will be allowed to join in the festivities has not been revealed, or who is to play the bagpipes and carry in The Haggis. It is expected that Chief Dave Gillespie will emerge from his semi-retirement to give grace and color to the recital of The Toast to the Puddin', and that Jimmy Taylor will have a few more burrs to his speech that evening. Owing to the loquacity with which speakers at Burns' anniversaries are usually possessed, it has been suggested that the toastmaster have a big gong to call time if they exceed the specified limit.

The product that is advertised in The Journal is worthy of your confidence.

Millions of "Little Savings" Make Up Life Insurance

LIFE INSURANCE ASSETS—large in the aggregate—actually consist of the "little savings" of more than 3,500,000 Canadian policyholders. The great majority of these policyholders are men and women of moderate means, whose thrift often involves personal sacrifice.

Sharing in the protection and financial security of Life Insurance, are people from every walk in life—including thousands upon thousands of wage earners whose individual savings are necessarily small. That is why Life Insurance is rightly regarded as Canada's greatest co-operative enterprise.

Consider what your savings in Life Insurance mean to you and your dependants, in protection and peace-of-mind. Then you can realize what millions of similar savings mean to the people of Canada.

These combined savings in Life Insurance, which total more than Two Billion Dollars, are invested so that every obligation to policyholders and beneficiaries may be promptly and fully met.

Day after day, year after year, "little savings" in Life Insurance accomplish great things in aiding the widows and fatherless—in educating children—in making older men and women financially independent.

1936 he showed his act
And he never made a bow,
His turn was awful, that's a fact,
And we thought he'd be a wow.
But who's the new kid stepping in,
What personality?
We hear he will without a doubt
Bring on prosperity;
Snap out of it, come on applause,
He goes into his dance.
Don't sit there looking stiff and bored,
Come give the kid a chance,

Used By Three Generations

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Is Widely Known

Lydia E. Pinkham's is probably one of the best known names among women, for, while not a scientist, scientist, medical authorities and many thousands of grateful women have acclaimed her prowess for many years.

Her first laboratory was her kitchen where, in an iron kettle, she compounded the roots and herbs which brought to her Vegetable Compound such lasting fame.

To-day, the descendants of Lydia E. Pinkham, adhering to the same formula as of yore, carry on the work in the six modern buildings which now comprise the laboratory.

Anyone going to Lynn, Massachusetts, is impressed with the spic and span cleanliness of the present establishment, which covers almost an entire city block, for there is not a model kitchen in the country kept neater or in a more orderly manner.

One section of the establishment is used as a special warehouse for the roots and herbs, which are the essence of the year when their medicinal properties are most potent.

Under a competent staff of experts, these roots and herbs are carefully sorted and seasoned so that their full effectiveness will enter into the preparation of the compound.

A product for women, originated by a woman, the business is to-day conducted by women, and the heads being descendants of the founder, and thereby in a position to follow closely the original ideas of their illustrious forebear.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which, as the name aptly conveys, is a strictly a combination of Nature's healing roots and herbs, is in no sense a patent medicine, but a standard proprietary which has stood the test of generations, its benefits to suffering womanhood being acclaimed by more than a million unswerving letters that have been written by women from every section of the globe.

New Breed Of Sheep

May Soon Be Producing Different Kinds Of Fur

The Montreal Star says the successful crossing of a limited stock of Russian caracul sheep, from which fashionable furs are obtained, with other more common breeds is reported by United States Agriculture Department experts. As a result, they said, farmers soon may produce considerable broadtail, Persian lamb and caracul fur. Imports of the three mounted to about $3,000,000 in the last five years.

New Type Of Automobile

Henry Ford To Place Motor In Rear Of Car

Described by the pioneer manufacturer as making possible "an easier riding car," an engineering patent for mounting a motor in the rear of an automobile has been granted to Henry Ford.

Other automobile manufacturers also have been experimenting with this general idea, leading to speculation as to possible revolutionary departures in future motor car construction.

Ford's chassis design provides for mounting an eight-cylinder V-type motor slightly behind the rear axle, the patent office announced. The motor would be placed crosswise to the car, fitting the chassis space slightly behind the rear wheels.

The axle gearing, transmission and differential would be constructed as a unit, and mounted on a resilient support.

By placing the motor rearwardly of the rear wheels, Ford said in his patent application, "the centre of gravity is materially shifted rearwardly so that it coincides with the passenger carrying space and thus improves the roadability of the car."

The "improved wheeling" distinction, he continued, "will provide an easier riding car."

Ford's drawings of the new design showed only the chassis, and there was no indication of what type of body might be built upon it.

Officials assumed, however, the construction would make possible new experiments with streamlining. With no motor in the front of the car, they explained, the body might be shaped without regard to the present engine hood.

Officially behind the rear axle, the motor would be covered by the sloping rear end of the body.

The patent, which Ford first asked in May, 1935, was issued on the "H. H. Ford automobile chassis construction." Officials explained the delay in issuing the rights had resulted from a search of files to determine whether the construction previously had been patented.

Have No Legal Rights

Frenchmen's Wives Obligated To Submit Evidence To Husband

Feminists have launched a campaign to free the French married woman from the restrictions imposed on her by French law.

French women in general have no vote and the French married woman has practically no legal rights whatsoever. Her signature is not valid on any legal document. Without her husband's authorization she cannot run a business, rent an apartment, or take out insurance on her life.

Madame Kraemer Black, French lawyer and one of the leaders in the campaign for legal rights for married women, said that "children and idiots have more legal rights under English law than sane, married French women under French law."

Among the examples which feminists use in their campaign for rights for women is the following: A wife whose husband had left her for another woman was working to support herself when she was permanently incapacitated in a street car accident.

She obtained her husband's signature to sue the street car company. The court awarded her a life annuity as compensation for her injuries, but she lives in a public institution because the annuity (quite legally) is paid to her husband and he (quite legally) spends it all himself.

The late King George of England made a hobby of rearing budgerigars, the beautiful Australian love birds.

An Accurate Count
The new hand in the works was shown a heap of bolts on the floor, and told to count them into a box.

He began—"One, two, three . . . 'That's not the way," said the foreman. "Count 'em in threes—three, six, nine, and so on."

When the bolts were all in the box, he was asked how many there were. "A boxful of threes and two over," was the reply.

Explanations And Comments

Nicodemus Visits Jesus by Night, John 3:1-2. Nicodemus was a Jew with a Greek name. He was a Pharisee, a member of that sect which as a rule appears in the Gospels as bigoted and hypocritical. He was, moreover, a ruler of the Jews, a member of the Sanhedrin, the highest council of the nation. The Romans had conquered the Jews, but they allowed them to be governed by the Sanhedrin, the Court of Justice, as we might call it, almost as though there were no conqueror over them. The Sanhedrin consisted of seventy-one members who belonged to the richest families in Jerusalem.

Nicodemus is known as "the man who came to Jesus by night," and many sermons about spiritual timidity and cowardice have been based upon this incident in Nicodemus' life. Yet there were good reasons for his choosing the night time for his visit. He was a ruler of the Jews, and he was not ready to throw his influence that way, not being himself sure that he believed in Jesus.

Nicodemus began with a diplomatic speech. "Rabbi," he said, "we know that thou art a teacher come from God; for no one can do these signs that thou doest except God be with him." In John 2:23 we are told that when Jesus was in Jerusalem at the Passover many believed on his name, beholding the signs which he did. And then we are told that Jesus did not trust himself unto them: a belief in him based solely upon his miracles was not enough.

The Conversation about the New Life, John 3:3-13. The report of this conversation is abbreviated, and between the questions and answers given other remarks no doubt important to the story. Except one he was not ready to throw his influence that way, not being himself sure that he believed in Jesus. The increase of the number of those who believed in Jesus was not enough. The increase of the number of those who believed in Jesus was not enough. The increase of the number of those who believed in Jesus was not enough.

Jesus answered, "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except one be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter the Kingdom of God." "Of water"—a reference to the necessity of the washing of repentance symbolized by the water of baptism. "Of the Spirit"—a reference to the need of a positive attachment of the inner life to an abiding source of moral help. When a man by repentance and faith has been born anew of water and of the Spirit, he has already entered the Kingdom of God (Charles R. Brown).

Deposits are higher than at any period in the bank's history, with the single exception of 1929.

Deposits by the public have increased by $71,000,000.

This is the third consecutive year that the bank's deposits have shown an increase in excess of $50,000,000.

Such evidence of confidence on the part of the public must be regarded with satisfaction by the shareholders.

Current loans are at the end of 1935 were $290,765,358 as compared with $282,416 a year ago.

It is understood that this decrease is largely accounted for by the liquidation of advances made by the large carryover of wheat accumulated during recent years and which has now been sold and exported.

Strong Liquid Position

As might be expected under existing conditions, the liquid position is exceptionally strong.

Total liquid assets being $553,230,273, an increase during the year of $90,000,000.

Of this amount $193,260,978 is represented by cash on hand or on deposit with the Bank of Canada and other banks.

While $241,630,416 is represented by Dominion and Provincial Government securities.

The outstanding high-grade corporate bonds under the heading is understood to be represented altogether in short-term, high-grade corporate bonds.

Total liquid assets are 66.07% of liabilities to the public, which is, of course, a reflection of present monetary conditions rather than of deliberate policy.

Lower yields on Government securities and the smaller volume of commercial loans have naturally had an adverse effect on income, but this has apparently been more than offset by the reduction in interest paid on deposits, increased operating efficiency, and improved earnings in other directions.

Profits Higher

Profits in 1935 were $2,000,000 as compared with $1,800,000 in 1934.

The increase in profits is due to a number of factors, including the reduction in interest paid on deposits, increased operating efficiency, and improved earnings in other directions.

GEORGIA GRAIG

Starr's eyes drooped, and a faint flush touched her cheeks. "It—it—Oh, I mean it all seems so—rather cold-blooded, Lance—the whole arrangement you're proposing—I've always thought that—well, that love ought to have something to do with it."

"I'll teach you to love me, Starr!" he said eagerly, as his hand brushed her slight fingers until she winced as antique Egyptian rings pressed into the tender flesh.

She glanced up into his amorous eyes, shook her head a little, and there was a far-away expression on her face.

"I wonder," she said softly, "I wonder if I ever will know what love really is... I don't know."

He laughed a little shortly. "And I don't know why I'm mad about you but I am."

Starr's black eyes twinkled. "Shall I tell you? It's because I'm probably the first woman on whom you've set your determination to possess who didn't fall for you the first minute you snatched your fingers."

Lance's arm slid around her, and he bent over to kiss her. "You will fall for me, young lady!" he laughed confidently, even a little arrogantly. "You don't know me when I get really started."

"I know you have a good line," Starr smiled, and Lance nodded. "Quite so," he remarked. "That's what I've been told. Properly heated, but never hard-boiled."

Badinage was not enough for Lance Marlowe, however. He very quickly got to the point of pressing his questionable suit with Starr. And then she suddenly realized—just how it had come about she did not know—but she had given Lance Marlowe her promise to give him his answer that night. At whatever party it was they were to attend, Starr did not trouble to ask where it would be. Parties were parties—just so she could keep moving and have no chance to think.

If she accepted him in the sense he wanted to be accepted, she was to wear his bracelet, and then he would know. She would know that he belonged to him, was willing to be his current light of love.

She was still stalling for time, a little frightened by Lance's insistent eagerness. At last she told him rather shakily, trying to recapture a fragment of her daring "Play-Girl" camouflage.

"A bride is allowed time to arrange her trousseau, Lance. Haven't a mere mistress the same privilege?" "All right, Starr. If she can make it snappy."

She wished he wouldn't talk quite so much. She wanted to think, a chance to be quiet. As greatly as she had wanted him to come to relieve her loneliness, now she wanted him to go away, so that she could try to figure it all out. And her brain was already so racked from too much thinking.

Finally Lance, too, got restless, and suggested a drive. That appealed to Starr far more than just sitting here in this quiet room, tete-a-tete with the man whom it might be she soon would see far more of than she cared to see. She jumped to her feet.

"With you in a minute, old thing!" she said gaily. "As quickly as I can slip into something that will not cause so much excitement on the avenue as this rag might."

It was a golden afternoon when they started out in Lance's expensive, though growing a little late. The sky was still lullabian. There was a touch of Autumn in the air which somehow manages to make its way into the streets of New York in spite of the skyscrapers and lack of trees. Lance drove across town and they turned into the Park. He drove aimlessly, because this strange, moon "Play-Girl" had told him as mood as she snuggled down beside him that she wanted to be very quiet, and think over their affairs.

She was thinking. There must be a little peace somewhere in the world, if she could only find it. Did it lie with Lance?

After all, why not let Lance provide a guided, luxurious setting for the rest of her short days? It was the easiest way. Life surely owed her much, after the shabby deal it had handed her.

Marriage with Michael would have been cheating. But she would not be cheating Lance. She had plenty to offer him in return for anything he offered her. Lance did not want a wife, nor a home. All he wanted was a scullioning mistress, one who would make him the envy of his fellows. Well, she could be that to him.

In a few months he would be tired of her, just as he had tired of his other fumes. . . . All right. In a few months it would not matter. Starr was mindful of the whimsical words she had spoken to colored Saphires.

"A puff of wind will break the glass," then there'll be no more Starr."

Unconsciously she voiced aloud the question around which all of her thoughts pivoted. To her real motive—the reputation of "Play-Girl" who had had too many lovers:

"Is there any virtue in remaining good when everybody thinks you're bad?" It was the old question—of the game and the card.

And then she awoke to a realization of Lance's presence. He was staring at her with his keen, restless eyes. Avvidly appraising the loveliness he had desired since he first set eyes on her. His thin eyebrows were raised, his mouth a crooked, sardonic smile.

"My dear Starr," he drawled amusedly, "you are talking very queerly to-day. Was it too much champagne last night?"

Starr flushed. Delicate eyelids drooped, shading her long, wistful eyes from him.

"Perhaps," she murmured, wondering what the servants would say or think when they found that flower bowl.

No, must snap out of this mood. This was not the kind of mistress Lance Marlowe wanted to adorn his penthouse. He demanded gaiety, vivacity, sophistication.

She noticed suddenly that they had left the Park behind and were on the streets of New York again. She turned to Lance questioning.

"Where are we going?" He grinned at her. "To congratulate the bride-to-be."

"Stephanie Dale?" A sharp breath caught in her throat. "But I don't want to see Stephanie! I don't like her!"

"Stephanie wants to see you," Lance remarked with decision. "She particularly asked me to bring you down to her house this afternoon."

There was a peculiar light in his eyes. For a moment Starr had a suspicion that he guessed her secret. Why? Why should Stephanie want to see her? What extra humiliation was this? She would not stand for it! She couldn't stand any more.

Incredibly enough, as she shortly discovered when Stephanie came to greet them in the drawing room of her fine old home, with all her ancestral portraits looking down from the walls, Stephanie wanted to apologize to Starr Ellison. She did it very prettily. She was like a complacent little pink and white doll when things were going her way, as they were at present. No one would ever imagine that words of violence could fall from soft lips, or venom show in her sapphire eyes.

"I'm terribly sorry for some of the things I said to you," she murmured to Starr. "I hope you'll believe that it was just because I didn't understand, and when a girl loves some one—"

She sighed and there was an expression in her eyes that said of course "Play-Girl" could not be expected to understand the true meaning of love or its nuances.

When I realized that you were not "Play-Girl" at all—a secret between Michael and me, of course—(Her eyes said that though Starr might not be Michael's "Play-Girl" that there was a question of Starr's fitness in the role)—when I found out that Michael was just paying you to do the things you did; that the whole thing was planned because of his great love for me—"

Starr winced. Stephanie was subtly rubbing it in. But her bland blue eyes were childlike and innocent. Too innocent. She rattled on:

"I'm giving a week-end party in honor of Michael at our home in Westchester this week, Miss Ellison. Michael and I are driving up there this afternoon. It has to be done all in a hurry because—well, because everything would be a hurry from now on. We just can't wait to be married, now that Mother and Father have finally given their consent—"

(She said that as though she and her blessed parents were doing a favor to Michael). . . . I'm counting on you to be one of my house party guests, Miss Ellison. You have played such an important part in bringing about Michael's success. I want all of Michael's friends of share in our happiness."

Oh, no! That was too much! When Starr had ordered Michael out of her apartment, she had sworn to herself that she would never see him again. She could not bear to see his proud, contemptuous face. To her real motive, he was hating her, and how unfair it was—how terribly unfair! But that was how life had always been to her—unfair.

It was not right to ask her to spend a week-end with Stephanie and Michael, watching them make love in included corners, constantly hearing all about their plans for their wedding.

Stephanie's sapphire blue eyes peered beyond Starr's mask. Did she suspect, too? Was this casual invitation to be a cloak to hide her real motive, a desire to avenge herself upon Starr by parading her man before the eyes of the girl who had lost?

Lance had strolled up to the two, carrying his cocktail glass. Just in time to hear Stephanie urging Starr to be a guest at her house party. He had heard nothing of what Stephanie previously had said. In spite of her remarks to Starr, too, it was quite obvious that Stephanie had no desire to clear Starr Ellison's reputation in Stephanie's eyes. She was quite willing to keep the secret for the publishing company—and for Michael. She was complacent about allowing everybody else to continue thinking Starr the notorious "Play-Girl." Having Starr as her guest would be considered magnanimous on Stephanie's part.

Before Starr realized what it was all about, Lance was accepting Stephanie's invitation for her. His manner was most possessive, as though she no longer had any will of her own.

"Of course she'll come, Stephanie," Lance was saying suavely. "Starr never refuses an invitation, no matter what the reason for it. Do you, Starr?"

No, Starr never refused a party. She must remember her role. That was her life—hers and Lance's. Rushing from one gay party to another. With never a breathing spell in between, because the breathing spells were such agony.

Lance said, "I'll drive her up on Saturday myself, Stephanie. That is, if I'm invited, too."

Stephanie gave a tinkling little laugh. "Silly man, of course you are!"

Starr's sigh of resignation was only inward. Well, anyway, if week-end at Stephanie's would delay her surrender to Lance, Starr reflected bitterly that that was all a day-by-day staving off of the inevitable.

CHAPTER XIII

The lovely country home of the Dales was filled with friends of Michael's and Stephanie's. It was a gay party.

As far as Starr was concerned, she realized after her arrival with Lance Marlowe that there might have been only four people there: Michael, Stephanie, Lance and herself. A drama was being woven about these four of which the other guests never dreamed.

On the surface Starr Ellison had never appeared so lovely, so gay, so transparently brilliant, nor so desirable.

Starr and Lance had arrived rather late; giving Starr barely enough time to dress for dinner. She wore a shimmering, sparkling rock as silver as the moonlight on the terrace. Her only piece of jewelry was a bracelet. A bracelet three inches wide, set solidly with marvelous diamonds about a band of fire opals which everyone some time during the evening remembered must have cost a fortune.

It gleamed against her bare arm like a beacon. Lance saw it as she descended the wide staircase. He was not near enough to speak, but Starr saw the flames of desire leap in his eyes. He understood. When this house party was over she was his! Cleverly she had managed to defer the wearing, or the not wearing, of that bracelet until the first night of Stephanie's party in her Westchester home.

Stephanie saw the bracelet immediately, too, and gave vent to a quick cry of admiration.

"Starr!" she cried—It was on Michael's advice that she had ceased calling Starr "Miss Ellison" and was calling her by her first name, as befitted a hostess to an intimate guest.

"Starr! How perfectly beautiful! How utterly gorgeous! Fire opals, aren't they? Um, rare—But do you know I've seen another just like it? That June Garfield, the dancer in the Sunnyside Revue, has one!"

Stephanie turned and called to Lance. "Remember, Lance? She used to be a friend of yours, didn't she?"

Starr winced. For a second her lip quivered beneath its bold, light color. Stephanie's inference was so obvious. Lance looked away quickly as Starr's sweeping black eyes sought his.

"Fire opals. . . . they just suit you, you lovely creature of fire and ice."

How ungallant of Lance to present her with a bracelet which was an exact duplicate of the one worn by Starr's predecessor. Or was it a whim of his to brand his light of loves alike? Like bartered women in a harem! Possibly it was not so difficult to find fire opals, after all. Cartier's might have a standing order for them.

Michael did not speak, looking on as he lounged against the wall near the foot of the steps, but Starr sensed that he, too, understood the significance of that bracelet.

He was marvelously handsome to-night, so tanned and firm and young and strong that it hurt Starr's heart just to look at him, knowing that she could not pull her eyes away. Handsome, yes, but different from his usual self, somehow. He did not in the least have the look of a happy, accepted lover. A certain buoyant quality which had been present in the stranger Starr Ellison had run across on Fifth Avenue that day was missing. And in twenty-four hours Michael Fairbourne had most positively changed.

This was their first meeting since Starr had sent him away from her in a passion. The deep grim lines she had seen in his face then still remained.

To get away from that look in his face and eyes, Starr threw herself into all the merrier there was afoot. She was the gayest of the gay. During dinner, she was thankful that Michael was at the far end of the table beside Stephanie, and she ran on feverishly with her famous sarcastic quips and witticisms all through the meal. It was not until dinner was over, and they were setting up the bridge tables for those who wished that diversion while in the great drawing room, the radio was already making music for the dancing that for a moment in passing, Michael caught Starr alone in the hall. He touched the glittering haubon on her wrist and said harshly:

"You're doing well for yourself, Starr."

Her cheeks burned. "So glad you approve!" she mocked.

"I didn't say I approved!" Michael flung back at her furiously.

Instantly each of them was on the defensive again, daggers unheated, hands clenched, in a spasmodic flare of their old battle.

"It's none of your business!" Starr flamed. "I've told you that!"

"I don't want to be your business!" Michael flung back.

Local News

Miss Linda DeCocco returned to Edmonton after spending Christmas at her home here.

Wednesday morning hit the low mark of the week with 30 below at International mine and the airport.

The Misses Mildred and Blanch Higgenbotham were home for the holidays and returned to Calgary on Sunday.

Mrs. Cora McFarland of Airdrie is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lonsbury, she being a sister of Mr. Lonsbury.

Mrs. Walter Fredrickson and children returned home this week after spending a few days visiting relatives at Claresholm.

Pattinson's Ladies' Wear is closing out all lines at remarkably low values—all modern stock, not shopworn. See ad. page 4.

Door prizes at St. John Ambulance Association dance were won by Archie Anderson with ticket 677 and Pete Fontana with 470.

The shelf radio set recently stolen from Sentinel Motors was found beneath the loading platform of the former beer warehouse at the C. P. R. tracks.

New numbers in the January telephone directory are Airways Radio Survey, H. E. Taber, No. 41r4, and Coleman Airport, Dept. of Civil Aviation, No. 41r3.

Next Monday at 8 p.m., the annual meeting of Crows Nest Pass Musical Festival will be held in the Greenhill hotel, to receive the financial statement for 1936 and elect officers for 1937.

J. Fairhurst returned home from hospital on Wednesday, and his daughter Hilda, who has been visiting here over the holidays, returned to Vauxhall on the afternoon train.

William Clapham, father of Mrs. Albert Knowles, attained his 70th birthday on Sunday, Jan. 3. He is still hale and hearty and quite active, and good for many more years.

A minor auto collision took place near the hospital on Sunday when cars driven by Harry Gardner and Andy Gardiner collided. The left front fender and headlight of Gardiner's car was badly smashed.

Blairmore scored an upset last night when they held Lethbridge Maple Leafs to a 5-5 tie after twenty minutes overtime. With Jack Kwasnie doing a sterling job at coaching and with several Coleman players to strengthen their attack, the Bearcats are to be commended on their record so far this season.

Social Credit Delegates

Delegates from the zone council attending an inter-provincial conference last week at the Prophetic Bible Institute, Calgary, were Fred Antrobus, Coleman; Donald McPherson, Blairmore; John Diamond, Frank; Glyn Rees, Hillcrest; James McLean, Bellevue. The latter was elected provincial delegate.

Rebekah Lodge Installation

Officers installed at Victoria Rebekah Lodge by Sister Elizabeth Lonsbury, district deputy, were: Sisters Gertrude Neilson, J. P. N. G.; Constance VanDuzee, N. G.; Dorothy Collagrosso, V. G.; Mildred Holstead, R. S.; Agnes Vincent, F. S.; Elizabeth Lonsbury, treasurer; Mina Ford, R. S. N. G.; Rose M. Dunlop, L. S. N. G.; Anna Nash, R. S. V. G.; Mary Fraser, L. S. N. G.; May Yates, Chaplain; Ellen Hope, I. G.; Bertha Bowe, O. G.; Elsie Shields, Warden; Margaret Surtees, Conductress.

Following the installation a very nice supper was served and a social was enjoyed. This lodge was named after the late Queen Victoria, and is one of the earliest organized in Coleman.

"King of Quilters" Dead

Willie Watters, 66, of Lochgelly, Fifeshire, known to many former "Fifers" now living in Coleman, died in December. For 40 years he played the game, and won the largest stakes, £400, ever played for in Quilts. Wm. and Jock Bell have played with him, and he was well known to G. Kellock and others here. His favorite weight was 8 lbs to 8½ lbs. Such a brilliant exponent was he of the game that he was known as "The King of Quilters." W. Bell last saw him when he visited Scotland in 1926.
